Aftermath: The attack claimed 93 lives and left dozens seriously hurt

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE

Survivor: Lutfur Rahman

Man survives Taliban bloodbath in mosque

A distraught Kingston man has spoken of how he narrowly survived a horrifying bloodbath during a terrorist attack in Pakistan last week.

Lutfur Rahman, 32, said he was lucky to escape the massacre in Lahore on Friday, in which armed Taliban militants claimed 93 lives and left dozens more seriously wounded.

The gunmen, wearing vests rigged with explosives, burst into the Bait-ul-Noor mosque with machine guns and grenades to commit a devastating killing spree.

Mr Rahman, a textile engineer who lives in Fairfield Road, said: "I still can't believe I survived. They approached the mosque with what looked like AK-47s and were wearing jackets with explosives. They were clearly trained and knew what they were doing.

by OMAR OAKES

ooakes@london.newsquest.co.uk

"People forced the terrorist down, he tried to detonate [his bomb] but the bomb malfunctioned and then he attempted to shoot himself, but the shot was not fatal.

"I feel fortunate to be alive. There were bodies riddled with bullets everywhere, I still remember the constant gunshots and grenade blasts."

Ahmadi Muslims have been targets for violence since their beliefs were branded non-Muslim by the Pakistan government in 1974.

Asif Badwa, whose uncle was murdered during the attack on Friday, said: "There are posters in Lahore saying 'kill the Ahmadis'. Why didn't the Pakistani government take any action? It's not only Ahmadis, Christians have been killed in Pakistan too."

The Foreign Secretary William Hague said on Friday: "The UK Government utterly condemns today's attacks in Lahore, which have led to the loss of many innocent lives.

"Our thoughts are with the victims and their families. The attacks are a reminder of the importance of the international community working with Pakistan to tackle the threat of violent extremism."

Mr Rahman, who would normally spend half the year in Pakistan for work, said it was unlikely he would return to his homeland again.

He said: "I can't ever return because I owe it to my wife and son to keep myself safe. I just hope the British Government can put some pressure on the Pakistani government to protect us from future killings.

"I don't understand why they have done this. We are a peaceful community that helps others. Our motto is 'love for all, hatred for none'. We have never hurt anyone."

Members of Kingston's Ahmadi population came out in force on Tuesday to sign a book of condolences at the Baitul Futuh Mosque in Morden to pay tribute to those hurt and killed.

Ceremony marks best in business

The annual South London Business awards came to a glittering conclusion on Wednesday, May 26, with Croydon funeral directors Rowland Brothers International named business of the year.

Accepting the accolade, Tony Rowland, a director of the family firm, said: "I'm very proud of what we have done. This evening I'm excited and, as an undertaker, you don't get too much excitement."

Earlier in the awards evening, held at Crystal Palace FC's Selhurst Park stadium, Rowland Brothers was also named best medium-sized business and was highly commended in the category of best business for international trade.

Kingston company Menzies was named best business for training and development.

CEO Andrew Denley said: "When a recession hits, businesses have to make quite hard decisions."

"We decided to increase our commitment to our training and development programmes to make sure we are best placed to take advantage of the opportunities that will arise as the south London economy recovers. We are very pleased to have received this award."

This year's awards attracted entries from 250 companies throughout the boroughs of south London. Some 73 of these were shortlisted as finalists in 12 categories.

The competition, organised by South London Business, and with HSBC as its principal sponsor, covered a comprehensive range of business types and sizes.

The Oscar-style awards ceremony, in a lavish marquee on the Selhurst Park pitch, was hosted by radio DJ David Jensen and attracted more than 500 guests who, following dinner, waited expectantly for the words "and the winner is..."

Addressing the audience, Peter

Praise for businesses: Chief executive of South London Business, Peter Pledger

Deadlinepix CF6785

Pledger, chief executive of South London Business, said: "We organise these awards because we are committed to business and business success. By celebrating success we can generate success. All of you are making a difference and helping to bring south London out of this recession, so thank you all."

Paper's Zac-track

A national newspaper was forced to backtrack when it incorrectly claimed that Zac Goldsmith had signed a letter of protest against BBC cuts.

The letter, sent to the Guardian, stated losing services such as 6 Music and the Asian Network would be a huge mistake.

But Mr Goldsmith, Conservative MP for Richmond Park and north Kingston, said he did not agree with the petition, which has been signed by actors Emma Thompson and Alan Rickman.

He said: "To be clear, I am a big believer in the BBC. If it faced a genuine threat I would stand up for it."

"I believe the BBC needs to change, and that should involve cutting back in some areas in order to reinvest in others."

"This petition is far too simplistic in my view."

"While I would not want the overall BBC budget to shrink, I believe the corporation has become too expansionist. Its purchase of the Lonely Planet book empire was very hard to understand or justify."

"I would like to see the BBC scale back in some areas, with the savings used to invest in high-quality programmes."

Can this Spelbound trio take home the trophy?

by MARTIN GEORGE

martingeorge@london.newsquest.co.uk

Surbiton High School is keeping its fingers crossed for three of its girls as they take to the stage in the live TV final of Britain's Got Talent on Saturday, June 5, as part of gymnastics superstars Spelbound.

The tumbling trio helped the 15-strong troupe reach the final, after they came top of the public vote in Monday's semi-final, despite Katie, 17, tackling her A-levels, and Abi, 16, about to take 10 GCSEs.

Amy, 12, has almost finished her first year at high school.

The group are now firm favourites to win the competition, with William Hill quoting them 5-6 odds, ahead of body-popper Tobias Mead, who finished behind the gymnasts, and band Connected.

Judge Piers Morgan said: "I don't know how that came over at home on the TV, but I can tell you in the room that was one of the most extraordinary routines you could imagine."

"The big question we always ask at this stage, particularly when it goes live, is could we imagine you gracing the Royal Variety Show – and in your case, absolutely."

Superstars: Abi, Amy and Katie are one step away from the Royal Variety Show

The Surbiton girls are part of the school's gifted and talented programme, which helps pupils balance their academic work with training commitments.

Principal Ann Haydon said: "We are delighted for our three girls."

"To get to the final of Britain's Got Talent is a massive achievement, and reflects the hard work and training Spelbound put into their performance."

"Anyone who saw their semi-final appearance could see how long they have needed to rehearse to get it so good."

"We are probably biased at Surbiton High School, but we think they would be ideal winners of the competition, and wish them the very best of luck."

"We hope the British public agrees with us that Spelbound would be perfect winners."

The final will start at 7.30pm on Saturday, June 5, on ITV.

Will you vote for Spelbound? Comment at kingstonguardian.co.uk

NEWSbrief

MOVING IN: Kingston's population is growing at nearly twice the average rate of London's outer boroughs, according to research from the Mayor of London's office. A report published by Boris Johnson revealed that Kingston grew by 15.8 per cent from 1971 to 2008, compared with the outer London average of 8.7 per cent. Hounslow grew the most – 17.6 per cent – closely followed by Merton at 17.3 per cent.

BIG BROTHER: Kingston Council has drawn praise from a civil liberties group after reporting no instances of using "snooping" laws to spy on residents. Big Brother Watch found 372 local authorities to have authorised 8,575 investigations under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act since April 2008. The group has now called for the law to be scrapped.

LOG ON: Surbiton library in Ewell Road will be running a three-week course covering the basics of using the internet, Google, online shopping and accessing public services. The £18 course will run from Wednesday, June 9, until Wednesday, June 23, 9.45am to 11.45 am. Call 020 8547 6444 to book a spot.

Bet on a move

Bookmakers William Hill hopes to strike it lucky with a plan to move its betting shop in New Malden High Street.

The bookies' parent company has bought the site currently occupied by Reed Employment, and has submitted a change of use planning application to Kingston Council.

The new site is thought to be more desirable than its current one – opposite New Malden station.

Youngest in charge of the public purse

Kingston Council has appointed London's youngest director of finance to see the council through one of its most turbulent times.

Leigh Whitehouse, 34, takes over from Tracie Evans, who left the council in unexplained circumstances last summer.

He spent most of his career at Hammersmith and Fulham Council, where he started as a trainee accountant in 1997, becoming deputy finance director in 2008 after an earlier three year spell at Hillingdon.

One councillor on the five-member appointment panel dissented from the decision to employ Mr Whitehouse, but said it was nothing personal against the accountant, but a register of protest against high salaries for senior council officers.

Councillor Patrick Codd said: "I feel as a general rule it has got totally out of control. I took the view that a stand had to be made at some point."

Mr Whitehouse said: "I am

by DAVID LINDSELL

d.lindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk delighted to have this opportunity to join Kingston at such an exciting time and help navigate the council through what will no doubt be an increasingly difficult financial environment.

"Public services will continue to feel the pressure during the current economic climate, but Kingston Council is ahead of many and is already taking positive action through the One Council programme to ensure the quality of services available to our residents continues to improve."

He will also chair the Safer Kingston Partnership, which brings together the council, police, health and fire services and voluntary groups.

Puppet hopes to inspire son into music

A Kingston College art and design tutor has launched an album inspired by his life, in a bid to encourage his son to play rock'n'roll.

Simon Klein recorded Puppet more than two years, using old keyboards, organs, vintage Gibson guitars and amps used by early Pink Floyd.

He said: "My English voice has a distinctive sound, the songs reminding some people of Syd Barrett from Pink Floyd."

"Some of the songs also have a music hall flavour, such as Kurt Weill and particularly the ones written on Wurlitzer piano. Others say the album is generically something called art rock.

"I'm not so sure, but I do feel it is unique."

Puppet is available for £7 from Beggars Banquet and Collectors Record Centre, Kingston.

It will be available on iTunes from June 5.

Premature infants need breast milk

Kingston Hospital has launched a "community call to action" for mothers to donate their breast milk for premature babies.

The hospital's neonatal unit looks after premature and ill babies, whose mothers are often unable to produce adequate breast milk due to their baby arriving so early.

A Kingston Hospital spokeswoman said all donated breast milk would be stored in the hospital's specialised breast milk bank, where it would then be cleaned and tested before it is fed to a baby.

Donations will not be accepted from mothers who smoke or use nicotine products, regularly drink alcohol, use recreational drugs or test positive for HIV, hepatitis B or C, syphilis or human T-cell lymphotropic virus (HTLV).

Suitable donors are urged to log on to borntoosoon.org.uk, call the neonatal unit on 020 8974 5390 or email info@borntoosoon.org.uk.

Hold the phone: Jigsaw4u reconditions old phones so they do not have to be sent to landfill sites

Picking up the pieces

A Chessington children's charity has launched a recycling appeal to turn old mobile phones and printer cartridges into funds.

Jigsaw4u Recycling Appeal is calling for items headed for the bin, instead of cash donations.

Jigsaw4u's Rob Morton said: "Old mobiles and printer cartridges go to landfill.

"Most mobiles contain toxic substances, which can leak into the soil and pollute it, and printer cartridges take hundreds of years to biodegrade.

"Send them to us and they will be refurbished and reused."

For more details, visit jigsaw4u.org.uk/recycling or call 0843 2896765.

Bag an old hose or Eako iPhone case

When people think of recycling, old fire hoses would be the last thing on their minds, but not one environmental renegade.

A chance meeting between Kresse Wesling and representatives from London Fire Brigade (LFB) on an environmental management course set the pace for a whirlwind romance of rubber hoses and environmentalism.

Miss Wesling asked firefighters what the fire service needed to recycle and they told her about the old fire hoses they had to pay to dispose of once their repairers had exhausted their expertise.

She had the idea of taking the hoses, to save the fire service cash and to stop them going to landfill, and came up with the company name Eako.

by HARRY MILLER

hmiller@london.newsquest.co.uk

Miss Wesling said: "Once I met the guys from the LFB on a course I decided to go to Croydon and pay them a visit. I was living in Brixton at the time and was doing marathon training so I decided to run there.

"I arrived red-faced and out of breath and spoke to a team of guys who are absolutely committed to repairing the hoses and making them last as long as possible.

"Unfortunately some of them are simply beyond repair and the LFB has to pay to have them disposed of."

Miss Wesling found the hoses could be recycled into roof tiles, but expanded the company to making items such as iHose: Recycled hoses can become handbags or iPhone cases bags, wallets, belts and iPhone holders.

She said: "We had a series of meetings with Apple and under their guidance spent a year designing a holder for the iPhone."

As the company's nominated charity, LFB gets 50 per cent of the profits from the products.

GROWING CONCERN: A generation of London children are growing up unaware of how food grows or where it comes from, according to a survey released on June 1.

But 75 per cent of Londoners surveyed by environmental charity BTCV said they would grow their own if they had more space.

RA SALE: Mill Street residents' association holds its annual sale on Saturday, June 5.

Unwanted treasures will be on sale outside the houses from 10am to 1pm, and it is a great way to recycle.

How to be a good sport

Team spirit: Children at the MCC Spirit of Cricket launch with Chance To Shine, London

With the World Cup almost upon us, hundreds of budding young Wayne Rooneys will be inspired to go for a kickaround in the playground, writes Lisa Salmon and Kate Whiting.

Indeed, as summer rolls around, shouts and screams of children playing team games will become the norm but, unfortunately, so will faking injuries and elbowing.

According to a new survey by The Cricket Foundation and the MCC, more than half (54 per cent) of eight- to 16-year-olds see bad sportsmanship every time they play a game, with 73 per cent witnessing cheating in team games.

Luckily, help is at hand in the form of the MCC and Cricket Foundation's ongoing nationwide scheme to teach fair play in schools. Respecting teammates, opponents and officials are among the areas covered in the MCC Spirit of Cricket sessions, part of the Cricket Foundation's Chance To Shine campaign, available to nine- to 13-year-olds at 4,000 schools.

Stuart Priscott, Chance To Shine's regional manager for the south and south-west, explains: "Part of the programme is to embed the spirit of cricket, the concept of fair play."

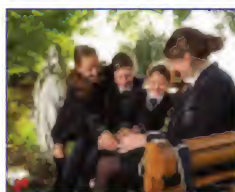

"Most of it is about reinforcing positive behaviour, knowing where the boundaries are."

"We are making sure the next generation of cricketers play in the right way. Our message is to play hard, play fair and have fun."

Support for physio who was struck off

I was very sad to read the article by Louise Robertson about the physiotherapist Richard Howlett.

How easy it is to bury someone alive.

I have known Mr Howlett for more than 20 years and can vouch that not only is he a top ranking physiotherapist with immense knowledge and understanding of his profession, but also a man beyond reproach in his moral behaviour.

What a disgrace to the British system of so-called justice.

I am sure that Richard and Elizabeth will find fortitude in their innocence and their faith to enable them to face what the future holds in store.

I cannot believe this to be true for those who placed them in this situation.

The true loss is of those patients who would have benefited from his expertise.

BERTHA CAFREY
Via email

Having read the article on Mr Howlett I feel I must write to say that my course of treatment was conducted in the most professional and respectful way.

I found him to be an honest and straightforward person who explained everything and answered my questions clearly and thoroughly.

Astonished at the allegations, I have read up on the case and find the methods used by the HPC to draw its conclusions to say the very least inadequate.

The community has lost a valuable and committed asset.

RM KEMENY
East Sussex

We have both been treated by Richard Howlett and have always found him to be entirely professional.

In particular, he was careful to explain what he was about to do and urged us not to go beyond the point of significant pain.

He must have treated hundreds of patients successfully, yet his life is ruined on the strength of disputed allegations from two people.

Of course it is necessary to protect the public, but some balance should be maintained. If "guilty until proved innocent" is pursued too far, we will end up with no physiotherapists (or teachers, doctors, etc).

Crash biker praises those who assisted

On the evening of Thursday, May 27, there was a road traffic accident at the Leatherhead Road/Malden Rushett crossroads involving a motorbike and a car.

Although only two vehicles were involved there were many who stopped to support and help those involved.

As the rider of the motorbike involved I would like to extend my thanks and gratitude to all of you who were there to help and support me during what was a difficult time, who waited with me until the ambulance arrived and made the very best out of what was a very bad situation.

Without your acts of kindness the incident may have been very different and I am overwhelmed by all those who stopped to be there for me.

A special thanks goes to Sandy and Steve who kept me calm and reassured me as well as assessing my injuries to prevent them from becoming more serious.

I am recovering well and can't thank you all enough for your help.

I would also like to thank all the officers from Kingston police force who attended the scene as well as the two paramedics that took me to accident and emergency.

You are all unsung heroes and without you things may well have been different. Thank you.

My only wish is that I could thank each of you in person.

SAM HARDING
Via email

Never too late to say thank you

My early and teen years were spent in Worcester Park where the opportunities for youth were abundant in the late 1950s and 1960s.

Cubs and scouts in Worcester Park introduced many care free days with the 10th Sutton team (10th Worcester Park at the time I think).

We had a leader David Monk who went over and above for his group.

Outside of school at Green

Lane Primary and subsequently Beverley, we cycled to Whitstable and the south coast and subsequently took our two wheels to Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany, in about 1961 or 1962.

In what were on occasions arduous family times, Mr Monk gave me a sense of belonging, participation and self worth that provided an abundance of opportunity in later life. Mr Monk went further and gave tutoring, counsel and support. Where I would have spent my days without his support has on occasion occupied my thoughts.

I emigrated to Canada in 1971 and don't recall ever having said thank you.

Would anyone know of Mr Monk's whereabouts?

AWARD WINNING CARING HOMES

Deer Park View, Teddington

Delivering Excellence to Teddington's Older Residents

New Home offers the highest standard of care in a beautiful location

Home Manager Katarina brings wealth of experience to
Deer Park View Care Centre

Deer Park View, a brand new care home from the renowned Caring Homes Group, looks to continue a tradition of delivering the highest standards of care by working with exceptionally qualified General Manager, Katarina Parr.

Katarina brings over a decade of experience to the team. She was the first Registered Nurse in the independent sector to become an extended prescriber, and every service she has directed and managed has achieved three star 'Excellent' ratings. With her extensive experience Katarina is able to lead by example, providing innovative solutions to medical and nursing matters. She says: "My passion for care stems from the fantastic relationship I had with my grandfather, a Second World War veteran, during my childhood. I was always grateful for the sacrifices he made for us and to this day I remain determined to make the world a better place for older people who have given so much during their lives".

As General Manager of Deer Park View Care Centre, Katarina oversees a robust search and selection programme to recruit an outstanding team including nurses, healthcare assistants, a retained local general practitioner, chiropodist, optician and pharmacy. Deer Park View also has a dedicated activities coordinator to organise trips, help residents maintain their hobbies and learn new skills. This top team ensures residents receive the highest possible quality of care whilst maintaining their independence, privacy and the right to choose the lifestyle they want.

Located opposite Bushy Park, the second largest Royal Park in the UK, Deer Park View is a prestigious purpose-built care service. As well as having an idyllic location the home benefits from attractive landscaped gardens, which are easily accessible from the ground floor. Wide pathways ensure ease of access for all residents and a patio and decked barbeque area really allow residents to make the most of fine weather. In addition, a beautiful roof-terrace provides breathtaking views of Bushy Park.

Katarina and Deer Park View's aim is to provide residents with a truly bespoke service above and beyond the traditional expectation of a 'care home'.

Flashback to the 1970s and you would find a longhaired Michael Bolton thrashing out songs with heavy metal band Blackjack.

Since then, he has sold more than 53 million records, earned a star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame, and had a dramatic makeover.

A clean-cut, blue-eyed Bolton will be at performing at Hampton Court Palace Festival on June 17.

He says: "The grounds are amazing, and the buildings are beautiful."

"We Americans are babies, and we just don't have this sort of thing. I'll be going on my own tour while I'm there!"

Bolton's career has seen him collaborate with greats ranging from Bob Dylan to Pavarotti.

Lady Gaga, and American R&B artist Ne-Yo worked on his latest album, One World One Love.

"Gaga was the surprise. At that time nobody knew of her as an artist," he says.

"It might seem unusual for us to work together, but the community of songwriters often reaches across genres. I saw that she was a little star just waiting to happen."

"Working with Bob Dylan was really surreal. I was sitting at a table with him, drinking a cup of coffee he'd just made, and all the time I was hearing this voice in my head saying, 'Oh my God, this is Bob Dylan'."

"I was very nervous about writing with him. Because how do you tell Bob Dylan, 'I'm not sure about that line?'"

Bolton tried to make his new album an antidote to recession gloom.

"The one central theme we stuck to with this was feel good" he says.

"As I was touring the world, I started seeing shops closing and people finding things difficult."

"We thought, let's get some endorphins going and put some energy into your life."

"People go to see live music to get away from it all. We could do 10 encores and no one would be eager to go home."

Why I ♥ Guiding

■ Were you a girl guide yourself? Yes – a member of Third Tolworth Guides.

■ How long have you been a leader? I have been a volunteer for almost 40 years and have held a number of different roles – Brownie leader, guide leader, division camp adviser and county young leader adviser. I am currently the division leader for young leaders (girls aged 14-18). I am a qualified trainer for Girlguiding UK and also a tutor to support volunteers.

■ What do you think the main benefits are of being a girl guide? Guiding gives girls and young women a voice, provides a unique girl-only space, promotes equality and diversity and remains relevant to today's girls. Girls in guiding form close friendships, grow in self confidence, learn new skills, gain new experiences and have fun.

■ Would you recommend others to get involved? Yes – as a volunteer you make a positive difference to the lives of girls and young women, and you'll also gain valuable skills and experience. There are a variety of roles that need volunteers.

■ Have you any quirky stories from guiding? My most amusing experience was following a training trip in Siberia. I was invited to stay at the home of one of the participants before flying home the following day. It was the smallest house I'd ever seen and there were only three beds – and six of us! One person slept in the car, one in the sauna and one on the garden bench, while the rest of us had the beds.

The folk-rockers will be supported on the night by The Dave Press Band.

Open Studios Thames Ditton

Artists Suzy Abrahams, Phillippa Egerton and Paul Cairns will be opening their workspaces in Thames Ditton to the public on a selection of days between June 5 and 20 as part of the Surrey Artists Open Studios event.

Abrahams says the trio are looking forward to welcoming art enthusiasts to their studios in Claygate Lane.

"We will be open the entire three weekends of the event, plus several weekdays and a late night, giving the public plenty of choice of visiting times," she says.

"Not many people know that we are here at all, so we are really looking forward to opening our studios and welcoming visitors."

This year, Surrey Artists Open Studios is celebrating its 10th anniversary and visitors will be able to view finished work as well and have a chance to talk to the artists about their creative processes.

Abrahams, Egerton and Cairns' studios are housed in a complex of small workshops right next to the Thames Ditton Miniature Railway.

Abrahams, who is a member of the Fountain Gallery artists' co-operative, will be displaying her latest collection of contemporary atmospheric paintings in acrylic.

The studios will be open on June 6 to coincide with the railway's open afternoon.

Things hot up as Wimbledon Dogs summer sale begins

With the World Cup fast approaching, football-fever is gripping the country.

And Wimbledon Greyhound Stadium is getting into the festive spirit by launching a range of offers including a Trackside Summer Soccer Special 1p meal deal.

For just one penny, trackside racegoers can get entry and a fast food meal on any of the track's Friday race nights between June 1 and July 11.

Keith Hallinan, general manager at Wimbledon dogs, said: "We're all big football fans here at the stadium and wanted to celebrate the World Cup with a special offer for our customers."

"We also recognise that for some, taking a break from watching all the football on the telly to enjoy an exciting, adrenaline packed race night at Wimbledon for just 1p is too hot a deal to miss out on."

"To get the 1p meal deal all people have to do is visit the website www.lovethe dogs.co.uk and download the voucher."

A free bottle of house wine is on offer to those dining in the acclaimed Grandstand Restaurant during the World Cup, when a three course meal is booked for four or more people.

The track has also designed a special package for groups of friends wanting to enjoy the summer racing. Parties of 20 or more will receive a 20 per cent discount on the Super 6 Pack – which includes entry, race card, drink voucher, tote betting voucher, fast food voucher and return voucher.

To book a restaurant night at the dogs quote 'press sale wine offer' via www.lovethe dogs.co.uk or by calling 0870 840 8905.

Indian and Thai Fine Cuisine

Bengali Food Festival

from 1st June - 31st July 2010

"Bengali cuisine is one of the most exciting in Britain today offering a true experience of the subtle spicing that makes Indian food so special. A special cuisine needs a special restaurant and Sesame certainly fits the bill".

Peter Grove editor Mood Food Magazine

"We rarely get to taste authentic Bengali cuisine, so when a restaurant with the skills of Sesame stages their Festival, it is an opportunity not to be missed."

Pat Chapman, Founder, The Curry Club, Proprietor, Cobra Good Curry Guide.

"As a result of the exceptionally positive feedback we have received from our customers about your restaurant over the past year, we are delighted to present you with a Tiptable Gold Award. This is a genuine accomplishment ... and we are delighted to say your restaurant achieved the highest rating".

Karen Hanton, Founder, toptable April 2010.

Top rated golden award winner in 2010 by toptable online bookers

Bangladesh and west Bengal, India's largest state, share a unique and delicious cuisine which has been around for thousands of years. Mustard seeds, theromatic nigella seeds, and the unique spice mixture, Panch Phoran make Bengali cuisine distinctive and they appear in some of the dishes on this special menu. Beef is a very popular dish and is enjoyed by Bengalis and the menu offers the classic Beef Bhuna. Bengalis adore fish too; hilsa, baim, hital, and pomfret appears in various dishes. There's Lamb Rejala, and several chicken classics, some, correctly, on the bone. Vegetables include the unmissable Lal Sag (red spinach), two fine aubergine dishes and the wonderful dal bhuna lentil dish. In the 19th century, Bengal became famous for its sweets and sweetmeats, and no Bengali meal would be complete with a dessert. We rarely get to taste authentic Bengali cuisine, so when a restaurant with the skills of Sesame stages their Festival, it is an opportunity not to be missed.

Queen of THE ROAD

Riverside getaways are all well and good, but what you really want to look at while enjoying a pint is a main road linking Kingston to Richmond.

If that is what you're after from an alfresco tippie, take a trip to the Queens Head and you'll not be disappointed.

In fairness, the pub can't do an awful lot about its location, but you can't help thinking the picturesque sun-bathed, glass-roofed beer terrace is wasted on the Richmond Road.

The Head – formerly the Owl and Pussycat – has had a recent makeover under new owners and, by and large, it has been done well.

Think traditional Victorian-style ale house with wooden floors, roaring fire (in the winter, no doubt) and ageing pub memorabilia adorning the walls.

Trouble is, the modernisation doesn't seem to have put off the love and hate tattoo-sporting regulars. This Pubspy doubts they are the sort to enjoy the falafel-based bar snacks on offer.

A short walk from the superbly located Boaters Inn, this place has its work cut out to become a venue of choice, but landlord and chef Tom has other ideas – not least with a new beer garden in production.

Staff told me it was his drum-kit and PA system stored in a side room. Particularly handy for the weekly post-Sunday lunch live music sessions no doubt.

This isn't an unpleasant place for a drink. Staff are friendly, the beer is good and the menu is tempting.

But at this time of year there are probably better places to be. Judging by the pictures on the Head's Facebook page, maybe a visit in the darker months should be put in the diary?

THE QUEENS HEAD, 144 RICHMOND ROAD, KINGSTON. KT2 5HA. 0845 202 4908.

How The Queens Head rates (out of five):

DECOR: * Cosy,

modern interior with traditional charm.

Location better suited to colder weather.

DRINK: * They were wet. Can't say fairer than that.

PRICE: * Not unusual for round here.

ATMOSPHERE: * Could do with hounding out the 'regulars'. Stiff competition elsewhere.

STAFF:  Talkative and welcoming.

How to lose weight while you sit and relax

There's no denying that massage has many benefits, although it can be a challenge to commit time – and money – to lengthy sessions, writes Rebecca Barnes.

If only you could find somewhere which offers massage in half the time of traditional treatments, that is not only highly effective but also affordable – and doesn't even involve you having to take your clothes off.

Sound too good to be true? Not any more! The state-of-the-art Miruji therapeutic massage chairs at Topnotch health club in New Malden offer a 15-minute full body massage combined with various pre-recorded audio programmes ranging from Sit & Be Happy to Sit & De-stress and the most popular, Sit & Slim.

Everyone knows about the dangers of excess weight, but persuading people to change their couch potato lifestyles is a continuing struggle.

The Sit & Slim weight-loss programme does not physically help the pounds

Try a free session or enter a competition to win a three-month Sit & Slim course drop off, but simply encourages you to address your current lifestyle and identify where you can make changes, guiding you along a healthier pathway.

Alan Sharrock, the healthy-living entrepreneur who introduced the system into the UK, points out that it's the powerful audio programme, which is based on neuro linguistic programming, that makes the system so effective.

The six sub audio programmes within Sit & Slim cover subjects including exercise and curbing sugar cravings, supporting and helping you to achieve your ideal body shape.

Miruji chairs can also be found in doctors' surgeries and workplaces, and the Sit & Slim programme is already a success, with volunteers recording measured and sustained weight loss.

"One woman was delighted that she'd lost one and a half stone during the three months that she was on the Sit & Slim programme," said Alan. "And even more encouragingly, not only did the weight stay off but she reported that she had lost a further stone on her own in the following three months, proving that her weight loss and changed attitude was enduring in the long term."

Single sessions cost £8, there are discounts for multiple sessions, and the price can be as little as £3 a session. For the Sit & Slim programme, the number of sessions required is a minimum of six, with users recommended to book top-up sessions as they feel the need (usually an additional two a week).

I've tried the Miruji chair, and I can see why the combination of targeted massage (the chair scans your body for tension at the beginning) with positive affirmations is a unique approach that is already proving to be highly effective. Make sure you take advantage of the free initial session and see for yourself.

● Kingston Guardian
readers can try a session free of charge at Topnotch health club, 23 Blagdon Road, New Malden, which has just launched the country's first Miruji health and well-being suite. Call 020 8942 9429 to book.

Competition

Miruji would like to offer six readers a free, three-month Sit & Slim course.

Simply tell us in no more than 30 words why you would like to lose weight, and send your answer, plus your name, address, phone number and email address if you have one, on a postcard to Sarah Roach, Miruji Competition, Newsquest South London, 819 London Road, North Cheam, SM3 9BN.

The first six best answers in the editor's view will win.

There is no cash alternative and the editor's decision is final. Closing date: June 21.

Prize must be taken by the end of October.

AUDI R8 SPYDER

Spyder has the power of a true supercar

With quality of construction and clarity of design, and the accuracy and response of the steering and gearbox, the Audi R8 Spyder has the power of a true supercar, writes Matt Joy.

If Audi was an old school friend, it would be one whom you catch up with on Facebook after 20 years only to find that they have done annoyingly well for themselves. Slick, successful, desirable and, as a result, impossible to hate even though you want to, the German firm knows how to push the buttons of potential buyers.

And now there's even more. Say hello to the R8 Spyder, which adds fresh-air fun to the V10's thrills. Turning the R8 Coupe into the Spyder hasn't sacrificed its good looks, either.

It's hard not to be a little flash in a low-slung two seater with this much presence but the Spyder avoids being over the top. You're more likely to meet respect and enthusiasm than outright envy – it's a thing of genuine beauty after all.

Unlike the Coupe, the Spyder comes only in full-blooded V10 form. The 5.2-litre unit is similar to that found in the Lamborghini Gallardo and produces a spectacular 518bhp and 391lb per foot of torque. There's a choice of transmissions, too, with a six-speed manual or six-speed automated manual dubbed R-tronic. Either way, the Spyder has the motive power of a true supercar and the performance figures to back it up: roof up or down, it will hit a hair-straining 194mph and blast from 0-62mph in only 4.1 seconds.

Don't mistake this docility for dullness, though. You can cover hundreds of miles in a single, easy-going stint and then a slam-dunk of the accelerator will punch you down the road in an instant.

Civility takes a back seat to thrills as the V10 engine struts its stuff, bellowing a delicious wail as it tears around to a spectacular 8,700rpm. If you flip the right paddle, the R-tronic transmission seamlessly slots in the next gear and the physical assault happens all over again. Punch the Sport button and the Spyder responds even more urgently, sharpening the actions of the gearbox and steering.

This is an Audi, of course, and such monstrous power can only be distributed through the legendary Quattro four-wheel-drive system. That means superb traction whatever the weather. Its surefootedness, and the accuracy and response of the steering, builds immense confidence in the driver, whatever their skill level: like all the best cars, the Spyder flatters the person behind the wheel.

You get plenty more of the standard Audi brand values, too. The interior is first class, while the specification isn't lacking, either. The standard Bang & Olufsen audio system will keep you amused should you ever tire of the V10's music, while features like sat-nav, Nappa leather and heated seats boost the luxury feel. It even has microphones in the seat-belts to allow you to chat on your Bluetooth-connected phone even with the roof down. They really have thought of everything.

So what of the big question then: how much? Well, you might want to be sitting down for this, as the six-speed manual version is £111,955 and you can add a further £5,000 for the R-tronic gearbox. But that gets you a largely hand-built, aluminium and carbon fibre supercar that's stunning to look at and a sensational drive.

The bad news is that the R8 Spyder will be rarer than hen's teeth, as the allocation for 2010 is already sold out. This just goes to show that, whatever the cost, quality never goes out of fashion.

Kingston Grammar School's U12s have won the Mayor's Borough Cup for 'softball' cricket for the third successive year and the fourth time in five years. The competition involves a shortened, eight-a-side form of the game, played with an 'incred- ible' that has a seam and behaves like a cricket ball but is softer. KGS won their three group games and semi-final before defeating Coombe Boys' School in a thrilling final.

Sam looking ahead after GB cup exit

New Malden's Sam Whatley admits he was given a harsh reality check at the BT Paralympic World Cup as high-flying Great Britain settled for bronze in Manchester, writes Chris Cottrell. Having lifted consecutive titles at the Arafura Games in Australia and Home Nations Championships in Lilleshall last season, the British squad demolished USA 8-4 to clinch third in the sport's debut at the multi-event World Cup. But defeats to eventual champions Holland and the Republic of Ireland cost Whatley and his team-mates their nine-game unbeaten streak as well as a place in the final. And, with the European Championships in Glasgow coming up in August, the 22-year-old concedes the performance in the north-east was a timely wake-up call. "We are disappointed but there we go – we've lost a couple of games and we've got to move on and do better in Glasgow," said Whatley. "We have got to try and bounce back now. We've got to try and maintain how we've done in the last year or so. "I'm still feeling pretty confident. We've got plenty more games and playing matches is the only way you're going to move on and bounce back." The BT Paralympic World Cup is the largest multi-sport annual elite disability competition in the world and more than 300 athletes competed in Manchester. The event is supported by Northwest Regional Development Agency and Manchester City Council. biparalympicworldcup.com

England call at last for Steve

by STUART AMOS
samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Surbiton Town Sports Club pool star Steve Chambers' persistence has finally been rewarded after he was picked for England's U21s. The 18-year-old tried three times to get into the U18s team without success, but has now been called up at the older age group at his first attempt. Surrey youth team regular Chambers, who lives in Epsom, beat former national U18s captain Phil Parkin 6-3 at the national trials in Great Yarmouth last week, winning all six of his qualifying games. He now stands a chance of appearing at next month's World U21 Championships in Blackpool, as well as the European U21 titles in Malta next year. "I tried out for the U18s three times, but without success, so to get into the U21s at the first attempt was a great feeling," Chambers said. "You have to take the rough with the smooth, I suppose, but I think it is a great achievement and I really feel as though the hard work has paid off. "I should get a singles place at the worlds because I was the first to qualify, but nothing is confirmed. "I have never played internationally before so I don't know what chance I'll have."

Pot of gold: Steve Chambers has been picked for England Deadlinepix Amy Weston SP31678

Former Blenheim High School student Chambers was 13 when he picked up a cue, and has represented Surrey for the past five years. And, after proving a point by beating Parkin, he is out to make up for lost time. "Phil didn't stand much of a chance, to be fair to him. I played really well," he added. "I have got three years in the squad so I should get plenty of opportunities. "There isn't a great deal of money in the game, but I will keep practising and see what happens."

REGULAR SPORT UPDATES at kingstonguardian.co.uk

SPORTSbrief

FOOTBALL: Kingstonian officials expect a FA decision this week on whether Boreham Wood will face charges over the crowd trouble that marred the Ryman League Premier Division play-off final last month. Ks have argued the match should be replayed after skipper Francis Duku was attacked by a rival fan in the second half of his side's 2-0 defeat in Hertfordshire. Ks latest: kingstonguardian.co.uk

CRICKET: Malden Wanderers claimed a four-wicket win at Weybridge in Saturday's Surrey Championship Premier Division clash. Shaun Cousens took 3-21 as the hosts were bowled out for 145 in just 26 overs. Cousens then excelled with the bat, hitting 43 as Malden rattled off the required runs to reach the target in 25 overs. More cricket: kingstonguardian.co.uk

MOTOR RACING: New Malden's Tom Onslow-Cole has labelled the decision to place restrictions on his liquified petroleum gas Ford Focus ST as rash and unfair. The 23-year-old picked up his first race win for Team Aon at Brands Hatch last time out but is still 25 points adrift of joint leaders Matt Neal and Jason Plato. "I don't think it is fair. The car is quick now but we were struggling with it at the start of the season," he said. Full story: kingstonguardian.co.uk

CRICKET: Kingstonian blew a great chance to record their second Surrey Championship Division Five win of the season at Farncombe on Saturday. They reduced the home side to 77-7, chasing 173 to win, but failed to take another wicket. Opener Asif Shah led the way with 59 for the visitors, but Sajjad Ali (40) was the only other batsman to get any sort of score as Ks faltered.
